This Opportunity

Not just another project management role. This is an opportunity to shape how a growing organisation works, improves and delivers for the future.

We are looking for an ambitious, proactive and delivery-focused Project Manager to join our Business Transformation Team at an exciting time in the Trust's development. As Nexus continues to grow and evolve, we have an ambitious programme of change and improvement, with projects that will influence how we work across almost 25 schools and our wider organisation.

You will have the opportunity to lead a diverse and interesting portfolio of projects spanning organisational change, operational improvement, digital and systems implementation, commercial initiatives and service redesign. No two projects will be quite the same, giving you the opportunity to apply your project management expertise across different areas of the organisation, work with a wide range of stakeholders and tackle challenges that have a genuine impact.

This isn't a role where you will simply maintain project plans and chase actions. You will take ownership, shape delivery approaches, bring people together and turn ideas and strategic priorities into meaningful outcomes. From improving business processes and implementing new systems to transforming services and supporting wider organisational change, you will be involved in work that makes a real difference to how our Trust operates and supports its schools.

Working closely with senior leaders, project sponsors, Business Analysts and colleagues across our central teams and schools, you will lead projects from initial scoping and business case development through to implementation, benefits realisation and transition into business as usual. You will have the opportunity to influence decisions, constructively challenge existing ways of working and ensure that change delivers lasting value.

We are looking for someone who enjoys making things happen. You will bring proven project management experience, excellent organisational and stakeholder management skills, and the confidence to navigate complexity, manage competing priorities and keep delivery on track. You will be pragmatic, curious and solutions-focused, with the ability to see the bigger picture while maintaining a strong grip on the detail.

Why join us?
This is an opportunity to do more than deliver individual projects. You will help shape the future of a growing organisation, contribute to the development of our Business Transformation function and build relationships across a diverse and evolving Trust.

You will gain exposure to a broad range of strategic and operational priorities, and have the autonomy to bring your expertise, ideas and approach to how projects are delivered. Most importantly, you will be able to see the impact of your work in the schools, services and communities we support.

If you are looking for a role that offers variety, challenge, influence and the opportunity to make a genuine difference, we'd love to hear from you.

Postholders will have a designated base. Travel across Trust locations and schools will be required, and expenses are claimable from the base location.

In return, we can offer a supportive and forward-thinking employer with a clear vision and values, opportunities for professional development and career progression, and a collaborative and dynamic working environment.
