Scope for Impact

Cover supervision occurs when there is no active teaching taking place. Pupils would continue their learning by carrying out a pre-prepared exercise under supervision. Cover supervision can become a fundamental part of an effective cover strategy, increasing the options available to Head Teachers and allowing them to deal with teacher absence in a way which is compatible with the standards agenda and the efficient use of resources. In addition, permanently appointed staff providing cover supervision will be known to pupils, will be familiar with the school's policies and procedures, and can provide continuity when the class' usual teacher returns.

Cover supervision should only be used for short-term absences. These may be known in advance, (e.g. where a teacher has a medical appointment or is undergoing professional development) or could be unexpected (e.g. absence due to illness). Longer term absence, e.g. due to long-term sick or maternity leave should be covered by a teacher.

Job Context

The term 'cover' refers to any occasion where the teacher normally responsible for teaching a particular class is absent from the classroom during the time they have been timetabled to teach. Cover Supervisors can reduce significantly the amount of cover for absent colleagues which teachers at a school are required to carry out as this is not an effective use of their time. From September 2004 there will be an initial contractual limit of 38 hours per year. The National Agreement on School Workforce Reform makes it clear that the objective in the longer term is for teachers at a school to rarely cover at all. To achieve this objective, schools will need to find new ways of managing cover.

The class teacher will talk through lesson plans with jobholders to ensure they are well prepared to cover lessons.

Jobholders have to be sensitive to the impact of their own words and behaviour on pupils and be aware of child protection issues and policies on the use of restraint.

We confirm that the job description, person specification and additional information provided above conveys a full and accurate description of the job at this time.
