Dear Applicant,

Thank you for your interest in this new, key position for our school at the heart of its community.

James Calvert Spence College is an improving school, with GCSE and A-Level results showing an upward trend of improvement. Our community is on the beautiful Northumbrian coastline and we provide education for our young people from 9-18 as the result of a merged middle and high school. It's a fantastic place to work, with friendly, happy students and committed staff.

This is a new role that has been created to ensure a consistent curriculum from year 5 to year 13 is delivered by outstanding teachers, leading to excellent outcomes for our students. Assisted by a second in directorate, you will be responsible for the curriculum, standards of teaching & learning and outcomes in humanities and languages throughout our school.

It's a unique opportunity to transform learning and enhance lives.

You will join a capable and friendly team of five other Directors as a member of our Senior Leadership Team and become a key player in ensuring that our vision and values permeate everything that happens across our two sites. We invest in our leaders, and you will be provided with support and CPD, both internally and externally to ensure you reach your full potential, and are ready to move to the next stage of your career in due course.

I am looking for someone who is an excellent teacher, who has a depth of knowledge and understanding of the humanities and languages curricula, who is able to inspire and lead people and who can work as part of a team to make a real difference to the lives of our students.

I hope that, after reading the information on offer and visiting our website at www.jcsc.co.uk, you feel compelled to apply for the post.
