

Thank you for your interest in St Bede's Inter-Church School. We are seeking to appoint an experience and well-qualified teacher to lead our very popular and successful Media Studies GCSE course. This appointment will be full-time for a teacher who is able to teach a second subject, so please specify this within your application.

From September 2023, Media Studies will join with Business Studies and Computer Studies to form a new Faculty within St Bede's Inter-Church School, providing opportunities for collaboration and development.

In Media Studies our vision is to encourage students to look analytically and critically at the world around them, rather than be passive consumers of what they see, read and play.

We follow the Eduqas Media Studies GCSE C680Q and students experience a range of media including:

- Print: magazines, newspapers and advertisements.
- Moving Image: film, TV and video games.
- Online: blogs, online articles and websites.

Students analyse elements of media language such as: camera angles, genre conventions, colours, fonts, images, website features, design choices and word choices. Through this, they can understand how audiences are targeted, how media industries work and how topics and people are represented. Students learn how to apply relevant media theories and a range of specialist terminology.

Students create their own media products, such as: TV adverts, film marketing and magazine content. Media Studies offers a range of learning experiences through discussions, debates, research, group and paired work, individual focus, written assessments and assessment of creative projects.
