Vacant Position Lead Practitioner – Teaching and Learning
Home School Hessle High School and Sixth Form College
Pay Scale Leadership 6-10

The Vacancy

An opportunity has arisen for a suitable individual to work within The Hessle Academy as a Lead Practitioner – Teaching and Learning commencing September 2022.

The Academy

At Hessle Academy, we think our learners are extraordinary. Each year they achieve outcomes that are consistently above the national average while regularly dazzling us with their talents in the Arts and Sport.

We couldn't achieve this without our staff – our greatest asset. They are talented, professional, immensely dedicated to the success of our learners and committed to their own professional development.

At Hessle Academy, we value our staff and take their wellbeing seriously, with a commitment to reducing workload over the next three years, an annual staff Wellbeing Day and an active staff social committee. Consequently, Ofsted (September 2018) noted that, 'morale is high'.

As one of the schools in The Consortium Academy Trust, we offer significant career development opportunities for our staff and we expect your commitment in return. We think our learners deserve it.

The Candidate

This is an exciting time for an ambitious and innovative teacher to join the team. We are looking for someone with excellent teaching and communication skills, who will be creative, enthusiastic and committed.

We are seeking a Lead Practitioner who will exemplify, develop and share best practice across our Academy and ability to inspire others to improve their teaching.

The successful candidate will make a significant contribution to the evaluation of the quality of teaching and learning which will help to inform and develop a highly effective CPD programme, with the support of SLT. They will help to foster a culture of collaboration within the teaching staff body to consistently improve the quality of teaching and learning.
