

Malmesbury School Advert Teacher of Design & Technology (Specialism to be discussed upon interview)

Start date: 1st September 2023

Salary: MPS/UPS £28,000-£43,685

School context: Mixed 11-18, comprehensive, number on roll: 1435

Contract type: Permanent

Malmesbury School requires a dynamic, enthusiastic and well-qualified teacher of DT, with a specialism to be discussed. The ability to teach up to and including Key Stage 5 is desirable. The school has superb accommodation and the Design and Technology Faculty is housed in a suite of specialist rooms, all with high quality equipment including a dedicated ICT room. The faculty has close links with the James Dyson Foundation which has been very generous in their support of the School in providing bursaries for some of our A-level Design and Technology students as well as new laser cutters, 3D printer for students to use in their design work. The Design and Technology faculty has a history of excellent examination results and all subjects are very popular with students.

At Malmesbury School our vision is to be a happy, caring and excellent community. We are proud to be a truly comprehensive school providing an education of the highest quality for all the students within Malmesbury and the surrounding area. In addition to the Teaching School and Athelstan Trust opportunities, teaching staff at Malmesbury School have a wealth of employee benefits including:

- An excellent induction programme including support for those returning to teaching/new to schools
- A comprehensive CPD programme including specialist training provided by internal and external providers
- Access to the nationally recognised OLEVI Outstanding and Creative Teacher Programmes and NPQ programmes
- Coaching and mentoring support from senior leaders for those new to leadership roles
- A caring and supportive environment where wellbeing is a key priority - flexible working requests will be considered
- An Athelstan Trust newsletter that shares best practice and latest news
- A research informed Athelstan Trust CPD programme led by experienced staff across five schools
- Continual collaboration and sharing of resources to reduce workload and improve provision for students
- Excellent career progression opportunities
- An extensive enrichment and trip programme
- An on-site counselling service

Malmesbury School is a successful and growing 11-18 school with approximately 1,400 students on roll in the attractive town of Malmesbury, surrounded by stunning Wiltshire countryside with easy access to the M4. We enjoy excellent modern facilities and offer unparalleled support and opportunities to staff who wish to develop their skills and leadership.

The Athelstan Trust is a Multi-Academy Trust formed in 2015 currently consisting of five secondary schools (Malmesbury School, Bradon Forest School, The Dean Academy, Sir William Romney's School and Chipping Sodbury School) in Wiltshire, Gloucestershire and South Gloucestershire. All our schools share a deep commitment to delivering an excellent comprehensive education to all the students in the Trust. The Trust offers further career development opportunities for colleagues to work across more than one school in a supportive environment.

Please complete the Athelstan Trust application form and write a letter of application of no more than two sides to Mr Brett Jouny, Headteacher, detailing why your skills and experience make you a suitable candidate for this role. If you wish to discuss the role further please contact Maisie Holden at mholden@malmesbury.wilts.sch.uk.

The closing date for applications is midday Monday 20th March 2023 with interviews taking place Friday 24th March, although this may be subject to change. We reserve the right to withdraw the advert in the event we reach the required number of applicants.
