The Geography Department

The Geography department at Uplands is founded on enthusiasm, passion and rigour, with a drive to motivate and inspire students to not only be successful geographers, but also be knowledgeable world citizens. The department seeks to equip students with a breadth of knowledge across a multitude of Geographic topics, through a variety of teaching methods and styles.

The Geography faculty works collaboratively with a shared pedagogy formulated around the six principles of education. We continue to build our knowledge through regular professional development both as a group and individuals, allowing for shared knowledge and expertise to be free flowing within the department. A positive ethos is the key to the department, and we are excited to welcome a new member to our team, to further develop the department.

The department has a suite of well-equipped classrooms within a new building, in close proximity to one another to allow for a supportive and collaborative working environment. Each classroom is equipped with a desktop PC and data projector, as well as dimmer lighting and air conditioning. In addition to this we have bookable IT suites, and areas such as the library that can be utilised to encourage students to use a variety of resources both in class and independently to develop their independent learning skills.

At Key stage 3 students follow a spiralled, knowledge rich curriculum. Students build upon themes, ideas and skills term on term, utilising an analytical and academic approach to their studies.

At Key stage 4 all students have the option of studying Geography or history or both disciplines. Geography is well subscribed and has mixed ability classes throughout the GCSE. We have a strong focus on academic success, following the AQA exam board, whilst ensuring students also leave their Geography GCSE course as well informed and knowledgeable citizens.
