

TEACHER OF HUMANITIES WITH SPECIALISM IN RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

Salary: MPR/UPR
Contract: Permanent
Hours: Full time/Part Time
Required from: September 2022

Warblington School is a thriving, forward-thinking 11-16 comprehensive school based on the Hampshire/West Sussex border, just 3 minutes off the A27 and with a railway station on our doorstep.

Following our increase in numbers on roll, we are seeking to appoint an innovative and enthusiastic teacher of Humanities with a specialism in Religious Education. This position would be ideal for an ECT/NQT but applications are also welcomed from experienced teachers.

Our ideal candidate will:

- Be an outstanding classroom practitioner
- Able to continue to develop the curriculum in line with the Hampshire syllabus "Living Difference III"
- Have high expectations of themselves and those around them
- Have a proven track record of improving academic standards across all year groups
- Be able to think strategically
- Be insistent on educational excellence
- Have the ability to foster our culture of high standards in Teaching and Learning, curriculum and emotional intelligence

The successful candidate will be required to take a full and active part in helping us maintain and enhance our school's reputation as a happy, thriving and improving school where staff are supported with a comprehensive professional development programme. You will play an instrumental role in raising our academic standards as we ensure that excellence is an expectation in everything we do.

We can offer:

- A supportive school community with a positive working environment
- Students with high expectations
- A dynamic leadership role to develop expertise
- Opportunities for career development and high quality professional development
