

TEACHER OF LAW

At Birkenhead Sixth Form College, rated Outstanding by OFSTED, we're passionate about teaching, learning, and creating a positive, progressive environment for both our students and staff.

We seek to appoint a committed and hardworking teacher who is a specialist in Law. This role is to teach BTEC Applied Law and potentially teach on the A Level Law course. This is a permanent position on a part time basis with a 0.5 fraction, a full-time position also available if preferable.

BTEC Applied Law is a very popular course choice in the College, with over 170 students studying the course across both year groups. The course covers units in Criminal Law, Civil Law and Tort Law. In addition, the department also offer A Level Law which over 140 students study. The department follows the Pearson specification for the BTEC course and the OCR specification for the A Level course.

The suitable candidate will be an individual who is immersed in their subject and loves imparting this passion onto their students. Not only will they be highly effective in the classroom but they will also drive the process outside the classroom, maintaining up to date records of work submission, student performance, attendance and promptly tackling any issues as they emerge.

We are looking for an individual with a strong passion for Law and eager to inspire the next generation of lawyers. Whatever your experience you will be supported in a way that best supports your development, in a College renowned for its innovation as well as the exceptional progress of its students.
