The School of Bury St Edmunds

It is believed there was a school in Bury St Edmunds from the 10th century. In 903 the body of King Edmund was laid in the priests' college, of which the school was a part. King Canute established a Benedictine Monastery in Bury, and paid from the royal purse for boys of promise, even freed sons of slaves, to attend school. In 1550 lands were given to provide funds for a "scole ther to be founded by the kinges Maiestie in the like manner as the school at Sherbourne"

King Edward VI School is, therefore, the second King Edward VI School in the country, and in 2000 it had been founded for 450 years.

The school was opened on 3 August 1550 in Eastgate Street.

The second home of the King Edward VI Grammar School (from 1665 to 1883) was in Northgate Street (now known as St Michael's Court). The niche above the front door once housed a bust of the Founder King with a Latin inscription beneath.

The third home of the King Edward VI Grammar School (from 1883 to 1972) was a new building at the Vinefields site which later became St James's Middle School and St James Court.

The School's home since 1973 has been on the Grove Road site formerly occupied by the two Silver Jubilee Secondary Schools. The amalgamation of the three schools took place in 1972. The bust of King Edward VI (a new one made for Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee in 1897) is now over the inner door to the Lower Hall.
